Programs Produced and Broadcast

Internews Jamjang runs humanitarian radio station, Jamjang 89.4 FM in Ajuong Thok. The programs are largely based on feedback from community members, and insight from humanitarian organizations. Our main topics this week were:
Children’s Program: Adults cautioned on interfering in children conflict

Iftaton Nykang, a protection officer at War Child Holland said parents, particularly mothers, should not defend their children blindly when there is a fight among or when an adult correct them. He said such defense and interference could lead to disturbances in community relationships and would break down communication. He said such habits are not traditionally correct because this could easily teach children to misbehave as they wish because they are being defended. However, a mother, Farida John urged mothers on the program to avoid doing so because it could also lead to hatred and isolations among families.

Question of the Day Program: Peace on the airwaves

On the live studio call-in program, some listeners expressed their joy on the signing of the South Sudan peace agreement. Some said the signing of the peace has come like a light shining into their lives. They said a new era has come and that all south Sudanese should denounced tribalism and hate speech and embrace reconciliation among all the communities. Other callers said people should forget the bitter past and focus on building good future. Also, the suggested to Nile FM to bringing to the studio religious leaders (Christian & Muslim) to talk about peace and reconciliation so that they can call to find answers to their questions.

“Security at night needs strengthening”

Residents have told our listening groups that they want UNPOL to ensure there are patrols at night to improve the security situation in the PoC.

Adults, sector 1 block G1

Exercise in privacy

Residents have told listening groups they are worried about the effect on children seeing gym exercises from the British peacekeeper force and would like to ask camp management to ask the troops to exercise where kids can’t see them.

Adults, sector 4

Thanks for repairing bathrooms

In sector 1 Block C the residents listening group told us that they have asked IOM WASH department for repairing their bathrooms with new plastic sheets. They asked them to keep improving all the services. They appeal to IOM to continue with opening drainages to allow flow of water from bath rooms to the drainages. Over in block A, and also in sector 2 they were concerned their latrines are already full and are asking WASH partners be proactive in finding and emptying full latrines in all the sectors of the PoC so they do not have to join long queues or walk to find other latrines.

WASH Program: Clean homes during the rainy season

IOM Hygiene Supervisor, Yohaness Dak said that during the rainy season people should clean their homes every day and open the sub-drainages near to them. This will allow water running out side to the main channel to stop mosquitoes from breeding in the drainages. Also the program spoke to people about how they deal with garbage during the rainy season. A mother, Farida James, gave an example that during the rainy season she cleans her home every day and put the garbage into the barrels at the designated areas to avoid bad smells.

Fishing nets in the PoC for the first time

On the Nile FM broadcast Oxfam UK and UNYDA distributed fishing nets to about 500 people for the first time since IDPs entered PoC in 2014. The fisher folk expressed their delight that these fishnets will help them get more than enough fish for their families as well as for market for earning some income. They said the nets may help bring down the price of fish in the market too.
